WASHINGTON, DC – The American Society of International Law’s (ASIL) recent event, Transatlantic Regulatory Harmonization: The Way to Increased Trade, Investment, and Cooperation between the US and the EU?, is now available for online viewing at <http://www.asil.org/events/calendarmore.cfm?confid=450&URLmonth=2&URLyear=2007&CatID=0&TheType=>. To view only the PowerPoint slides from the program, visit <http://www.asil.org/webinars/20070222.pdf>.

The presentation explored German Chancellor and EU President Angela Merkel's recent initiative to boost transatlantic trade through the harmonization of US and EU regulatory requirements. ASIL member Lewis Leibowitz, a partner at Hogan and Hartson, LLP, who specializes in international trade law, led the program by giving an overview of Chancellor Merkel’s proposal and looking at the prospects for its realization.

ASIL hosts presentations on current topics in international law on an occasional basis as a free educational service. ASIL events generally deal with one of the Society’s seven program areas: Human Rights and Humanitarian Law, International Institutions,

International Law and Development, International Security, Science and Technology, Trade and Investment, and Transnational Litigation and Arbitration.
