International Law
in a
Multipolar World

April 3-6, 2013
The Marriott Renaissance Hotel
Washington, DC

American Society of International Law

To find out more about the American Society of International Law or to join, visit www.asil.org.

ASIL is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, educational membership organization founded in 1906 and chartered by Congress in 1950. The mission of the American Society of International Law is to foster the study of international law and to promote the establishment and maintenance of international relations on the basis of law and justice. ASIL holds Category II Consultative Status to the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations and is a constituent society of the American Council of Learned Societies.

The Society's 4,000 members from more than 100 nations include attorneys, academics, corporate counsel, judges, representatives of governments and nongovernmental organizations, international civil servants, students and others interested in international law. Through our meetings, publications, information services and outreach programs, ASIL advances international law scholarship and education for international law professionals as well as for broader policy-making audiences and the public.

Dear Colleague,

During the Cold War, international relations and international law were dominated by a struggle for global dominance between the United States and the Soviet Union. The resulting clashes reverberated in legal issues relating to the functioning of the United Nations, the use of force, nuclear nonproliferation, human rights, etc. The third world countries, caught in the middle, repeatedly made claims for reform and initiated rule-making initiatives, but with limited results. After the end of the Cold War, the United States, its Western allies, and their shared economic and geopolitical interests remained largely unchallenged in the international arena.

While the United States is arguably still the only superpower and the European Union remains the largest economy, the world is undergoing major change. China, India, Russia, Brazil, and other States in Asia, Latin America, the Middle East, and Africa are increasingly active voices in international institutions, such as the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, and the World Trade Organization, and have started questioning the dominance of the West in these organizations. These countries are forming alliances in the major international organizations and establishing new institutions to assert their authority and pursue their interests. In short, a new set of actors is moving onto center stage. In the process, these actors are seeking to reshape international rules governing trade and finance, military force, the environment, and beyond.

How will the international legal order evolve to reflect this new multipolar world? Will the international legal order undergo significant change as the global balance of power and influence shifts? Are there barriers preventing these actors from having a full voice in the international legal order? Can the major international organizations adapt adequately? Will new organizations emerge? How will human rights law, environmental law, trade law, the law of armed conflict, the law of the use of force, and other bodies of law reflect the interests and influence of a new set of actors? Are trends emerging already? How should the legal profession and non-legal experts—in the fields of technology, finance, trade, climate science, arms conflict, and arms control—respond?

During the 2013 ASIL Annual Meeting we will address these questions and discuss the evolution of international law in a multipolar world.

The purpose of the ASIL Studies in International Legal Theory is to clarify and improve the theoretical foundations of international law. Too often the progressive development and implementation of international law has floundered on confusion about first principles. This series raises the level of public and scholarly discussion about the structure and purposes of the world legal order and how best to achieve global justice through law. This series grows out of the International Legal Theory project of the American Society of International Law. The ASIL Studies in International Legal Theory deepen this conversation by publishing scholarly monographs and edited volumes of essays considering subjects in international legal theory.

Conference Information

Registration and Name Badges

The Annual Meeting Registration Desk is located on the Ballroom Level next to the main escalator.

Registration Hours

Wednesday, April 3	7:00 am - 6:30 pm
Thursday, April 4	7:00 am - 6:00 pm
Friday, April 5	7:00 am - 6:00 pm
Saturday, April 6	7:00 am - 10:00 am

All conference attendees will receive their conference badge and printed program at either the pre-site or onsite registration desks.

For safety and security reasons, photo ID will be required to pick up conference badges. Name badges must be worn for admittance to all meetings, sessions, receptions, lunches, and dinner. The badges also contain a bar code for scanning attendance at each session for Continuing Legal Education purposes.

Continuing Legal Education (CLE) credit

The 2013 ASIL Annual Meeting offers attendees nearly 33 Continuing Legal Education (CLE) course sessions on a wide variety of topics presented by seasoned international legal experts. Participation is on a walk-in basis.

In order to streamline the accreditation process, CLE participants will record their attendance at each session by scanning the bar code on their name tag at the entrance of each session room at the start and end of each scheduled session time. Staff and volunteers will be monitoring each scanner and can assist you with any questions you may have. Badges will be scanned if you exit a session early and partial credit will be given (based on either a 50-minute or 60-minute increment). Data collected by this process is used by ASIL and will not be shared with any other organization for any purpose other than state-required audits. After you have completed all of your courses, please stop by the CLE Help Desk to pick-up your CLE attendance certificates, located next to the onsite registration table on the ballroom level of the Renaissance Hotel.

Internet Access

Wireless Internet is complimentary in the hotel lobby. If you are a guest of the hotel, Internet access is available for a fee of $14.95/24 hours. In-room business amenities include: computer data port; high-speed Internet access.

Information Research Kiosk

The International Legal Research Interest Group (ILRIG), comprised of ASIL members who are legal information professionals and legal scholars, is offering new research services to Annual Meeting participants. Please stop by the kiosk located across from the onsite registration table on the ballroom level of the hotel for more info.

ASIL Annual Meeting Blog and Live-Streaming

The Society's Annual Meeting is hosting a blog. ASIL Cables, at asilcables.org, will publish daily reports on discussions and events, as they occur at the Meeting, and connect – almost in real time – conferees with the rest of the world. ASIL Cables is a way to stay abreast of the latest ideas generated at the Meeting – session by session – and is also another arena for ASIL members to engage each other in conversations, either as contributors to ASIL Cables or by posting comments. ASIL Cables contributors reflect the diversity and richness of the Society's membership. And, just as the physical meeting now brings together several organizations, this online arena will collaborate with other internet fora, cross-posting with the Opinio Juris, IntLawGrrls, and Global Arbitration Review blogs. Learn more during the Meeting by visiting asilcables.org. Fifteen Annual Meeting sessions will be live-streamed via the internet.

Family & Child Care

ASIL does not provide childcare services on-site at the conference. However, in support of participants in need of professional childcare services while on-site at the conference, the following referral is provided solely for the convenience of conference attendees. ASIL assumes no liability regarding the service they provide. We encourage all participants to also do their due diligence when selecting a childcare provider. Please contact Hazel Henningan at (202) 723-2051 for more information.

Electronic Devices

We kindly ask that you silence your electronic devices during the meeting sessions.

Non-Smoking Law

Washington DC law prohibits smoking in all areas of the hotel except for designated smoking guest rooms. Guestrooms and all public spaces at The Marriott Renaissance, Washington, DC are non-smoking.

Photography

ASIL will have a photographer onsite taking photographs in sessions, special events, keynote addresses, and throughout the Marriott Renaissance documenting the 2013 Annual Meeting. Fifteen sessions of the Annual Meeting will be video-recorded and live-streamed for viewing via the internet. Photos and videos taken of attendees during ASIL events will remain the property of ASIL and may be used in future marketing materials. By registering, Annual Meeting attendees consent to such use of any images taken at the meeting.

Message Board

Messages may be left with ASIL staff at the Annual Meeting registration desk or on a provided bulletin board, located on the Ballroom Level of the hotel. ASIL staff will endeavor to forward your message to the relevant party.

Recycling

When you are finished with the conference, please recycle your name badge by handing them to the designated registration representative onsite.

Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)

Accommodations

ASIL is able to provide reasonable accommodations for attendees with disabilities, so long as we are informed of your disability in writing prior to our meeting. Please contact Eden Capuano at asilregistration@courtesyassoc.com, if you have special needs.

OXFORD SCHOLARLY AUTHORITIES ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

Oxford Scholarly Authorities on International Law brings a major new dimension to our offerings for scholars and practitioners working in public international law. OSAIL contains full-text online editions of Oxford's market-leading reference works and treatises. All titles are fully searchable by subject matter, title, and author, and are linked, via the Oxford Law Citator, to relevant case reports and articles within all of Oxford University Press's online law products. With integrated access across our international law services the researcher is now one step closer to the perfect research solution. Visit: www.oxfordonline.com.

Users Can:

- Browse titles by author and contributor, title, and subject
- Search full-text of every title, or search within individual titles

The WILIG Mentoring Program!

Learn more at the WILIG Mentoring Program happy hour:
Thursday, from 7:00-8:00 pm at Zengo, 781 7th St NW (btwn H & G).

The WILIG Mentoring Program (WMP) connects experienced female international law professionals with female law students and new professionals interested in the field of international law. Mentoring takes place in a group setting, with a maximum of four mentees for every mentor. Mentors and mentees meet in person several times during the course of a year to discuss topics and engage in activities designed to help junior women enter and be successful in the field of international law. Upon finishing the requirements of the one-year program, all participants receive a certificate of completion.

Applications for Mentors & Mentees are now open.
The program will take place during the 2013-14 academic year.

Alternatives to Investor-State Arbitration in a Multi-Polar World

9:45 am - 11:15 am

Central Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Sponsored by the International Economic Law Interest Group and Cosponsored by the International Courts and Tribunals Interest Group, and the International Environmental Law Interest Group

Given concerns about the efficacy and legitimacy of the investment arbitration process expressed by “rising powers,” including Brazil, Russia and South Africa, there has been increasing interest in alternatives to the standard treaty-based model for managing investment disputes. These alternatives include dispute prevention and de-escalation policies, mediation and other non-adjudicative forms of dispute resolution, concurrent negotiations and wholesale Dispute Systems Design. By exploring these alternatives, stakeholders may create a more responsive international economic legal regime.

Uncommon Remedies in International Dispute Resolution

9:45 am – 11:15 am

North Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Dispute Resolution Interest Group, the Private International Law Interest Group, and the International Courts and Tribunals Interest Group

The most common remedies in international dispute resolution consist of monetary damages awards or declarations of non-compliance with international rules. However, there are other potential options, including moral damages and interim injunctive relief. The potential availability of unorthodox remedies raises many questions, including whether relief granted in one forum could cross-fertilize its adoption in another. Considerations about when to grant such relief go right to the heart of the evolving nature of the State itself.

Bond v. United States: the Chemical Weapons Convention, Federalism and the Treaty Power

9:45 am – 11:15 am

South Salon

In Bond v. United States, the Supreme Court will address whether and to what extent the Constitution's structural federalism limitations constrain Congress' authority to implement a valid treaty, in light of the decision in Missouri v. Holland; whether the implementing legislation for the Chemical Weapons Convention, 18 U.S.C. § 229, as applied in Bond, improperly treads on state law enforcement authorities; and if so, whether a construction of the statute is available that would avoid potential constitutional infirmity. This panel will explore historical and structural issues regarding the status of the treaty power in the U.S. federal system, as well as the specific questions raised in Bond relating to domestic implementation of the Chemical Weapons Convention.

Raid on Bin Laden and the Consequences for Sovereignty and the UN Charter9:45 am – 11:15 am*Meeting Rooms 10 & 11*CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0Sponsored by the International Law Students Association

What are the international legal consequences of the precedent set by the United States' method of choice in the raid on Osama Bin Laden? Instead of utilizing less invasive and less destructive drone strikes previously acquiesced to by Pakistan, the U.S. chose to send attack helicopters and soldiers into another country, arguably invading its sovereignty. The intervention may set a precedent for other nations to justify a similar strike. This panel will explore the legal issues surrounding the operation and its implications for the use of force.

Stepping Out of the Politics – Legal Solutions to Maritime Disputes in Asia9:45 am – 11:15 am*Rooms 8 & 9*CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0Cosponsored by the International Environmental Law Interest Group and the Law in the Pacific Rim Region Interest Group

Over the past several years, there has been heightened tension concerning features in the seas of Asia, the maritime delimitations of these seas, and the corresponding entitlements of the coastal States. With the discovery of hydrocarbon and other mineral deposits, the stakes have been raised and these disputes risk threatening both economic development and freedom of navigation. Consequently, there is great incentive to explore and develop legal, in addition to political, solutions to these maritime disputes.

The Future of Human Rights Fact-Finding

9:45 am - 11:15 am

Rooms 12, 13 & 14

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Recent years have seen a proliferation of innovative methods of human rights fact-finding and analysis, from spatial mapping to statistics. At the same time, however, there has been a serious backlash against human rights reporting. Critics have disputed the reliability of human rights fact-finding methodologies and interpretive techniques, questioned the rigor of human rights investigations, and denied the accuracy of reported findings. This panel will explore the opportunities and challenges of the current era of human rights fact-finding.

Remote Warfare: the Moral and Legal Challenges of Targeted Killings in a Multipolar World

11:30 am – 1:00 pm

South Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Criminal Law Interest Group, the Lieber Society on the Law of Armed Conflict the International Refugee Law Interest Group, and the International Legal Theory Interest Group

Recent disclosures about the Obama Administration's policy on targeted killings raise moral and legal questions about the application of humanitarian and human rights law. Is it war? If so, how should the humanitarian law rules of military necessity, distinction, proportionality, and obligation to undertake precautions apply to individual targeting decisions in which personal risk is removed from the military calculus? If not war, then what rules apply?

Divergent Responses to Climate Change in a Multipolar World

11:30 am – 1:00 pm

Central Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Environmental Law Interest Group

Only fifteen years ago, the Kyoto Protocol negotiations were largely a negotiation between the United States and European Union about developed country emission targets. Today, a wide variety of states play key roles in the climate change regime, including China (now the world's biggest emitter) and its partners in the BASIC group (India, Brazil, and South Africa); small island and least developed states, which joined with the EU at last year's Durban Conference to form an "ambitious majority" that successfully pushed to initiate negotiations on a new instrument for the post-2020 period; and the ALBA group of left-leaning Latin American countries, which blocked adoption of the Copenhagen Accord in 2009. In addition to the increasingly multipolar character of the UN climate change negotiations, climate change is also being addressed by a wider variety of institutions and actors, operating at many levels through a variety of different kinds of international instruments. The panel will address the increasingly multipolar and polycentric nature of the international response to climate change. From a positive perspective, what are the effects of this multipolarity? From a normative perspective, is it a good thing? Is it likely to produce fragmentation and gridlock, or a more diversified and ultimately more robust climate change regime?

Transitional Justice Branches Out

North Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Sponsored by the Transitional Justice and the Rule of Law Interest Group and Cosponsored by the Africa Interest Group, the Women in International Law Interest Group, and the International Criminal Law Interest Group

Transitional justice has branched out considerably over the last quarter century. This panel will consider whether, how, and why the field is expanding into areas of international criminal law, institutional reform and rule of law promotion, and socio-economic rights (such as land restitution and reform), and how these newer interdisciplinary and often bottom-up initiatives have challenged dominant western views of transitional justice's goals, scope and priorities.

Nonproliferation Aftermath: Legal Responsibilities under International Law once WMD Programs have been Secured or Destroyed

11:30 am – 1:00 pm

Rooms 8 & 9

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Sponsored by the Nonproliferation, Arms Control, & Disarmament Interest Group and Cosponsored by the Government Attorneys Interest Group

This program will explore what happens when a party to any of the key WMD treaties (chemical, biological, nuclear) acquires elements of another nation's or group's WMD program. The recent experiences in Iraq and Libya of WMD remediation have opened up these previously unaddressed questions. The potential for new conflicts where one of the parties potentially has a WMD program make this topic timely.

Challenges and Approaches to Effective Cyberspace Governance in a Multipolar World

11:30 am – 1:00 pm

Rooms 10 & 11

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Sponsored by the Private International Law Interest Group and Cosponsored by the International Law and Technology Interest Group, and the International Legal Research Interest Group

Perennially controversial, cyberspace governance is growing increasingly complex as more governments assert authority over the Internet. Consider the regulation of web-based content, where the promotion of information dissemination clashes with the protection of intellectual property rights and the desire by some to censor certain web-based materials. The proposed expansion of the domain name system (e.g., “.Catholic” and “.Zulu”) and the novel issues implicated by web-based trade (e.g., gambling and iTunes) only add to this complexity.

Advancing Mediation in International Investment Disputes

11:30 am – 1:00 pm

Rooms 12, 13 & 14

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Courts and Tribunals Interest Group, the Private International Law Interest Group and the International Economic Law Interest Group

While mediation is often used in commercial disputes between private parties, it remains uncommon in investor-State disputes. Could mediation become an effective dispute resolution method in international investment disputes? This program features a mock mediation in which the panelists will show how mediation under the IBA Rules on State Mediation could be used to settle such disputes. It will be followed by a discussion of the pros and cons of mediating international investment disputes.

Arab Spring, Revolutionary Change and International Law

1:30 pm - 3:00 pm

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Africa Interest Group, the Transitional Justice and Rule of Law Interest Group, the Human Rights Interest Group, the International Criminal Law Interest Group, the International Refugee Law Interest Group, the New Professionals Interest Group, and the Cultural Heritage and the Arts Interest Group

The convulsions in the Arab world have been accompanied by the language of international law – human rights, the law governing outside intervention, the protection of diplomats, accountability for recent and historic crimes, the interaction of Islamic law and international law, and the rights of refugees, to name a sample. Two years after the Arab uprising began, where do these revolutions in governance stand on issues of international law? A roundtable with some of the key thinkers in international law and Middle East policy will paint a picture of the ways in which international law has succeeded and failed to shape debates and outcomes.

Cosponsored by the Africa Interest Group, the International Environmental Law Interest Group, and the Dispute Resolution Interest Group, and the International Economic Law Interest Group

As national oil companies and multinational corporations have increasingly turned to new locations on the African continent to discover and develop its rich natural resources, the potential for disputes has rapidly increased. These new investment flows and contemporary production-sharing agreements test international dispute resolution mechanisms, particularly given the ever-present public policy option of nationalization. New discoveries also threaten to reignite long dormant border disputes between countries, with would-be investors potentially caught in the crossfire.

The Inter-American system, the human rights monitoring regime of the Organization of American States (OAS), is facing the most serious crisis of its 50-odd year history. Several Latin American governments have asked the OAS to limit the powers of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights and its Special Rapporteur for Freedom of Expression – restrictions that some believe would severely undercut the goal of protecting rights in the hemisphere. Howard M. Holtzmann Research Center for the Study of International Arbitration and Conciliation

The Howard M. Holtzmann Research Center for the Study of International Arbitration and Conciliation was established by the American Society of International (ASIL) to serve as an education and research forum for individuals interested in international dispute resolution. Building on the Society's recognized expertise in this growing field, the Center will serve as an indispensable research and education resource, providing cutting-edge, expert information and analysis on significant issues and current developments in the international arbitration field. Center activities will include:

- Collection of research materials on international arbitration, including Judge Holtzmann's personal library and papers;
- A regular program of events, including a speaker series with leading figures and continuing legal education courses on hot topics in the field; and
- Working groups and task forces convened to address the key challenges and emerging issues relating to international arbitration.

The Center is conveniently located at the Society's headquarters and is open to everyone interested in learning more about international arbitration and conciliation.

The ASIL Holtzmann Center is established in honor of Judge Howard M. Holtzmann. Over the course of his career, Judge Holtzmann has made enormous contributions to the field of international arbitration and conciliation, and mentored scores of young lawyers working in the field. He was central to the American Arbitration Association (AAA) work with the Arbitration Institute of the Stockholm Chamber of Commerce to build an East-West bridge through international arbitration. Notable achievements include: service as a member of the U.S. delegation to the Arbitration Working Group of the UN Commission on International Trade Law (1974-2011), which produced the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules, the UNCITRAL Conciliation Rules, and the UNCITRAL Model Law on International Commercial Arbitration, and service as a Member of the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal (1981-1994). For his pioneering work, the King of Sweden inducted Judge Holtzmann as a Commander of the Royal Order of the Polar Star in 2003. In 2005, he received the Silver Medal of Honor of Vienna, and in 2006, the AAA gave him its highest honor, the Peacemaker Award, for his "work to further peace throughout the world." Judge Holtzmann has been a member of ASIL since 1972.

This panel anticipates the Supreme Court's decision in Kiobel v. Royal Dutch Petroleum, which may have major ramifications for Alien Tort Statute-related litigation in the United States.

While Kiobel began as a case about corporate liability under the ATS, the central question has now become extraterritoriality. Does the ATS allow U.S. courts to hear lawsuits for violations of international law that occur on foreign soil? A round-table discussion of the decision (or the likely decision) will be conducted by leading academics and practitioners.

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Economic Law Interest Group and the Africa Interest Group

The recent global financial crisis and the emergence of the BRICs and other developing countries have prompted reconsideration of the existing economic law architecture. The G20 has expanded its role in responding to the financial crisis as a coordinative executive among international organizations, but would other existing structures be more appropriate? Perhaps a structure with an altogether new grouping of countries should be considered—one that reflects the economic and political clout of the BRICs?

The EU as a Global Actor in a Multipolar World

9:00 am – 10:30 am

North Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

This panel explores Europe's policies regarding international law in today's multipolar world. How distinct is Europe's normative agenda? Does the EU in the framework of its common foreign policy speak increasingly with one voice? Is there such a thing as an external legal policy of the EU? Are EU policies backed up by the projection of any serious power in the economic and military domain? Or is all this mere "lawfare" and an obnoxious hindrance to the US as the "indispensable power" of this world?

The Past and Future of African International Law Scholarship

9:00 am - 10:30 am

Rooms 8 & 9

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Sponsored by the Africa Interest Group and Cosponsored by the New Professionals Interest Group, and the International Legal Theory Interest Group

In the recent past, several important new books have been published on Africa and international law. These books from leading presses represent a new important moment in African international law scholarship. The first moment occurred in the immediate post-independent period, the last time that several books focusing on Africa and International law were published. Unlike in the immediate post-independence moment, the new books span new themes and concerns in Africa and international law including gender equality, economic integration and criminal justice. This panel will critically appraise what this new moment in African international law scholarship means.

The Regulation of Private Military and Security Contractors

9:00 am - 10:30 am

Rooms 10 & 11

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Government Attorneys Interest Group, the Private International Law Interest Group, and the Lieber Society on the Law of Armed Conflict Interest Group

The role of private military and security contractors (PMSCs) continues to expand. PMSCs may be situated in one State, recruit from another, and operate on behalf of a third state on its territory or perhaps on that of a fourth State. Has the use of PMSCs outpaced their regulation? What is the status, and what are the pros and cons of self-regulation, voluntary principles, domestic regulation, the development of a model law, or the negotiation of an internationally binding instrument?

Unilateral Secession in a Multipolar World

10:45 am – 12:15 pm

South Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Refugee Law Interest Group

With political change sweeping through the Middle East as a result of the Arab Spring, military rule loosening in Burma/Myanmar and internal strife burgeoning in Mali, the specter of unilateral secession looms large. As the declaration of independence by Kosovo and the formation of the new state of South Sudan make clear, the unilateral declaration of independence by a region or province from an existing country raises difficult questions under international law. The panel has drafted a hypothetical which will serve as the basis for its innovative approach to addressing contemporary secessions---which is available at <http://www.tjssl.edu/slomanson/ASIL_Hypo_Secession.pdf>.

China-Africa Investment Treaties and Dispute Settlement: A Piece of the Multipolar Puzzle

10:45 am – 12:15 am

Central Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Africa Interest Group, the Law in the Pacific Rim Region Interest Group, the International Courts and Tribunals Interest Group, the International Economic Law Interest Group, and the Dispute Resolution Interest Group

Traditionally, bilateral investment treaties (BITs) reflected the “West vs. Rest” power dynamic, whereby industrialized states protected their investments in developing countries. China, however, defied this trend, negotiating the second greatest number of BITs. Although those BITs historically emphasized defensive concerns, China has shifted to protecting its investors abroad. With the growth of Chinese investment in Africa, the stronger protections and broader dispute resolution clauses now sought by China feature distinctly in the multipolar puzzle.

Domestic Treatment of Universal Jurisdiction

10:45 am – 12:15 pm

North Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Law in Domestic Courts Interest Group, Government Attorneys Interest Group, the International Criminal Law Interest Group, the Private International Law Interest Group, the Transitional Justice and Rule of Law Interest Group, the Lieber Society on the Law of Armed Conflict Interest Group, the Women in International Law Interest Group, and the Human Rights Interest Group

This panel will examine emerging regional attitudes and national trends in the application of universal jurisdiction. In recent years, many states have called for a reassessment of universal jurisdiction, and some have modified their legislation in response to pressures both legal and political. Panelists will discuss the future of the concept of universal jurisdiction and assess proposals for resolving the tensions between the need to prevent impunity and the obligation to respect national sovereignty.

21st Century International Institutions: Lessons from Global Health Governance?

10:45 am – 12:15 am

Rooms 10 & 11

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Sponsored by the International Organizations Interest Group

Over the last decade, global health governance has emerged as an area of substantial innovation. In contrast to many international organizations, global health institutions are expanding participation in governance, adopting performance-based approaches, and building stronger links between global and national level governance. What lessons, if any, can be drawn for the broader challenges facing international organizations when it comes to fostering accountability and ensuring the provision of global public goods?

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Environmental Law Interest Group and the Private International Law Interest Group

The rise of both public and private project financing from actors such as China and Brazil is changing the rules around international public investments. The World Bank is reviewing its policies, and banks, bilateral aid agencies and other actors are under pressure to improve their own performance on environmental and social issues. This panel, which spans several interest groups, considers the impact and import of these developments.

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Economic Law Interest Group

Although traditional trade sanctions are still used, economic sanctions are focusing increasingly on the international financial system, with the goal of requiring or pressuring global financial institutions to forego transactions with sanctioned countries and persons. Are these sanctions more effective – combating terrorism, preventing proliferation, and contributing to political change? Or, do they simply exacerbate the historical challenges associated with sanctions – their adverse impact on ordinary citizens and the due process implications of designating sanctioned persons?

Rethinking Private International Law: The Emergence of the “Private”

2:15 pm - 3:45 pm

North Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0*Sponsored by the Private International Law Interest Group*

Under the influence of globalization, public international law has opened up to private actors and private arrangements. Does this make private international law superfluous? Or is private international law the future of the discipline? Is it true that the distinction between public and private international law no longer matters? Or is there something specific about private international law? The panel invites a discussion of these questions among representatives of both public and private international law.

Regional Perspectives on Refugee Protection

2:15 pm – 3:45 pm

Rooms 8 & 9

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Africa Interest Group and the International Refugee Law Interest Group

Since the 1990s, it has become increasingly difficult to persuade states to host refugees and other externally displaced persons. Yet, recent and current internal conflicts, from Mali to South Sudan, Somalia to Libya and more recently Syria have shown that the need for stronger international cooperation arrangements is probably as great if not greater than before. Regional arrangements have become a common response to ensure the adoption of protection-oriented approaches and adapt to an increasingly multipolar environment. Do these regional arrangements contribute to strengthen or do they undermine global protection standards?

Twenty Years of International Criminal Law: From the ICTY to the ICC and Beyond

5:15 pm – 6:30 pm

North, Central & South Salons

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the City of the Hague, The Royal Netherlands Embassy, and the International Courts and Tribunals Interest Group

Since its establishment twenty years ago, the International Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) has irreversibly changed the landscape of international criminal law and provided victims an opportunity to voice the horrors they witnessed and experienced. The International Criminal Court (ICC), governed by the Rome Statute, is the first permanent, treaty based, international criminal court, complementary to national systems, established to help end impunity for the perpetrators of the most serious crimes of concern to the international community. While operating at full capacity, the ICTY is now working towards the completion of its mandate. As an integral part of this completion process, in 2010 the Security Council created the Mechanism for International Criminal Tribunals (MICT), to carry on essential functions of both the ICTY and ICTR (such as witness protection), as well as to conduct ad hoc judicial activities. The ICC, celebrating its 10th Anniversary last year, has seen its activities grow steadily, and is not expected to fade anytime soon. Marking two decades of development of international criminal law provides an opportunity to review the impact, successes and challenges of the ICTY and of the ICC, and to draw lessons for the future.

Sponsored by the City of The Hague and co-hosted by the Hague Institute for Global Justice

The Hague is known all over the world as the 'International City of Peace and Justice'. Currently The Hague is home to 140 international NGOs and 25 international organizations. The Hague stands for hope in places as diverse as Tripoli, Nairobi and Kabul. Hope for millions of citizens. Hope that the crimes inflicted on them will not remain unpunished. Hope for a peaceful future. All Annual Meeting participants who have been or still are part of The Hague endeavor, are invited to an inspiring reunion hosted by the City of The Hague. Having so many judicial experts with a history with The Hague together at the Annual Meeting, for instance because of a (former) position or a summer course in the Peace Palace, warrants a reunion. The Hague Reunion Reception is co-hosted by the Hague Institute for Global Justice. THIGJ was established by The Hague Academic Coalition, the City of The Hague, The Hague Conference on Private International Law and The Hague Centre for Strategic Studies, and is supported by the Dutch government. The Institute is dedicated to the promotion of knowledge of law and justice as the basis of and in relation to peace, justice and social and economic development.

The Tension Between Law and Politics: Can the ICC Navigate a Multipolar World?

9:00 am - 10:30 am

South Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Courts and Tribunals Interest Group, the International Criminal Law Interest Group, the Women in International Law Interest Group, and the Transitional Justice and Rule of Law Interest Group

The global tension between law and politics in our multipolar world can be observed in the successes and shortcomings of the International Criminal Court. The notion of “gravity” was designed to be the litmus test for the reach of the Court’s authority to prosecute and punish. This panel will assess the viability of the concept of gravity as a legal standard able to guide the operation of the ICC.

Multipolar Governance Across Environmental Treaty Regimes

9:00 am - 10:30 am

Central Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Government Attorneys Interest Group and the International Environmental Law Interest Group

Multipolar governance is far from uniform across environmental treaty regimes. Why have some environmental treaties attracted sustained interest and involvement from a range of non-state actors and others perpetuated a state-centric structure? Are some environmental issues more conducive to state-based solutions? This roundtable investigates, and attempts to explain, the unevenness of multipolar governance across environmental treaty regimes.

The American Approach to Treaties

9:00 am - 10:30 am

North Salon

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Cultural Heritage and the Arts Interest Group, International Law in Domestic Courts Interest Group, and the Government Attorneys Interest Group

This roundtable considers the extent to which the United States takes a unique approach to treaty negotiation, ratification, interpretation, and domestic application, and examines the impact of U.S. practices on its engagement with the international community. To the extent that American practices are “exceptional,” does this exceptionalism hinder the U.S.’s ability to engage effectively in an increasingly multilateral world? Are these features of U.S. engagement with treaties necessary to protect uniquely American interests and concerns?

The Proliferation of Regional Trade Agreements: (Re-)Shaping the Trade Landscape with Multilateralism on Pause

9:00 am - 10:30 am

Mt. Vernon B

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the International Economic Law Interest Group

With multilateral trade negotiations seemingly stalled, regional trade agreements (RTAs) provide insight into the increasingly multipolar trading system. Major players are using RTAs to strengthen political/economic ties and to counter-balance dominant players in key regions. Developing countries are using RTAs to seek stronger voices and greater advantages on the global stage. Yet, all RTA participants face risks: decreased negotiating leverage in comparison to bilateral negotiations and trade-offs between negotiating high standards and attracting diverse membership.

Closing Plenary: Global Governance, State Sovereignty, and the Future of International Law

11:00 am - 12:30 pm

North, South & Central Salons

CLE Credit Hours: 1.5/2.0

Cosponsored by the Government Attorneys Interest Group and the International Environmental Law Interest Group

Two opposing global trends raise important questions about the future of international law, international institutions and global governance. On one hand, the scale and complexity of international interaction is increasing the demand for law and institutions, undermining sovereignty as traditionally understood. On the other hand, emerging powers and other states are pursuing policies that tend to reinforce an expansive interpretation of state sovereignty. This panel will explore those trends as they play out in various functional areas, such as human rights, intervention, trade and finance.

Moderator: Jose Alvarez, New York University School of Law

Speakers:

- Judge Bruno Simma, Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal
- Judge Hanqin Xue, International Court of Justice
- Joel P. Trachtman, Fletcher School of Diplomacy, Tufts University

Democratic Statehood in International Law

The Emergence of New States in Post-Cold War Practice

Jure Vidmar

This book analyses the emerging practice in the post-Cold War era of the creation of a democratic political system along with the creation of new states. The existing literature either tends to conflate self-determination and democracy or dismisses the legal relevance of the emerging practice on the basis that democracy is not a statehood criterion. Such arguments are simplistic. This book demonstrates that via the right of self-determination the law of statehood requires for state creation to be a democratic process, but that this requirement should not be interpreted too broadly. The democratic process in this context governs independence referenda and does not interfere with the choice of a political system.

Jure Vidmar is a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow in the Faculty of Law and a Research Fellow of St John's College, University of Oxford.

Transnational Terrorism and State Accountability

A New Theory of Prevention

Vincent-Joël Proulx

"It behoves all scholars and practitioners of international law with an interest in combating international terrorism to consider the proposals outlined in this book."

From the Foreword by Judge Bruno Simma, International Court of Justice
Every State has an obligation to prevent terrorist attacks emanating from its territory. This proposition stems from various multilateral agreements and UN Security Council resolutions. This study exhaustively addresses the scope of this obligation of prevention and the legal consequences flowing from its violation, so as to provide greater clarity on governments' counterterrorism duties and to enhance State accountability for preventable wrongs.

Vincent-Joël Proulx is a Legal Officer at the International Court of Justice and a Barrister and Solicitor of the Ontario Bar.

The Interception of Vessels on the High Seas

Contemporary Challenges to the Legal Order of the Oceans

Efthymios Papastavridis

The aim of this book is to address the international legal questions arising from the 'right of visit on the high seas' in the 21st century. It begins with an historical and theoretical examination of the framework underlying interception. This historical survey informs the remainder of the work, which then looks at the legal framework of the right of visit, contemporary challenges to the traditional right, interference on the high seas for the maintenance of international peace and security, interferences to maintain the 'bon usage' of the oceans (navigation and fishing), piracy jure gentium and current counter-piracy operations off the coast of Somalia, the problems posed by illegal, unregulated and unreported fishing, interdiction operations to counter drug and people trafficking, and recent interception operations in the Mediterranean Sea organised by FRONTEX.

Efthymios Papastavridis is a part-time Law Lecturer at the University of Thrace.
