

CALL FOR PAPERS

American Society for International Law
International Economic Law Interest Group (IECLIG)

in partnership with the University of Denver Sturm College of Law Sutton Colloquium

2014 Biennial Research Conference:

REASSESSING INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC LAW AND DEVELOPMENT: NEW CHALLENGES FOR LAW AND POLICY

University of Denver Sturm College of Law
Denver, CO, USA

November 13-15, 2014

I. Conference Theme

Amartya Sen's call for understanding development not only in terms of gross national product but also "in terms of the substantive freedoms of people" marked an important reframing of the legal and policy discourse around economic development.¹ The resulting Millennium Development Goals focused much academic research in this area towards a more comprehensive understanding of development, one that would recognize economic growth as intrinsically tied to such areas as: environmental sustainability; food security; the reduction of extreme poverty, hunger, and child mortality; access to health; and the promotion of education and gender equality. International economic institutions like the World Trade Organization, the World Bank, and the International Monetary Fund have traditionally been at the center of promoting and managing economic growth; yet, these institutions also face challenges caused by recent financial crises, the need for food security and high energy demand, while preserving natural resources and the environment.

With the approach of the fifteenth anniversary of the Millennium goals and given these new and ongoing challenges, it is time to reassess the role that international economic law (IEL) has played and continues to play in development. How effective is IEL at promoting development, broadly construed? Under what conditions is it effective? In what ways should IEL norms and institutions be adjusted to accommodate growing concerns around climate change, energy demand, food security, and other issues?

II. Proposal Submission & Selection

We encourage IEL scholars, practitioners, and advanced graduate students to submit proposals for paper presentations or panels. Proposals should be no more than one single-spaced page in length. For guaranteed consideration, proposals must be received no later than June 30, 2014.

¹ Amartya Sen, DEVELOPMENT AS FREEDOM at 33.

Paper proposals should include a working title of the paper and an abstract describing the paper's main thesis, methods, and contribution. You should also include a one-page curriculum vitae (CV) as a separate document.

Panel proposals should be organized around a theme and should include a brief description of the theme and a list of the proposed participants with their anticipated contributions, indicating whether the participants have expressed a willingness to participate in the conference should the proposal be accepted.

Proposals should be submitted to asil.ieclig@gmail.com. Any time-sensitive questions should be addressed to jyackee@wisc.edu and etrujillo@suffolk.edu. The selection process will consist of blind review by the IECLIG leadership and the 2014 IECLIG Biennial Selection Committee. We anticipate communicating acceptance decisions by July 18, 2014. Authors of accepted proposals commit to preparing a draft paper on their proposed topic, and submitting the draft paper to the conference organizers by no later than November 1, 2014.

ASIL-IECLIG 2014 Biennial Selection Committee:

Sungjoon Cho, IIT Chicago-Kent College of Law
Greg Shaffer, Minnesota University School of Law
Michael Ewing-Chow, National University of Singapore
Phil Nichols, University of Pennsylvania Wharton School
Jeff Dunhoff, Temple University Beardsley School of Law:
Jurgen Kurtz, University of Melbourne School of Law
Joel Trachtman, Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy
José Alvarez, New York University School of Law
Rob Howse, New York University School of Law
Gabrielle Marceau, World Trade Organization
Alvaro Santos, Georgetown University Law Center
David Gantz, University of Arizona James E. Rogers College of Law
Holger Hestermeyer, European Court of Justice
Phoenix Cai, University of Denver Sturm College of Law
Annecoos Wiersema, University of Denver Sturm College of Law
Tomer Broude, Hebrew University School of Law
Jason Yackee, University of Wisconsin Law School
Elizabeth Trujillo, Suffolk University Law School
David Zaring, Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania
Sonia Rolland, Northeastern University School of Law
James Gathii, Loyola University (Chicago) School of Law

III. Possible Topics for Papers and Panels

We have provided an illustrative list of possible paper and panel topics below.

We construe IEL and development broadly, and we are open to a variety of scholarly approaches. We welcome proposals adopting historical, empirical, comparative, theoretical, critical, or normative frameworks. We also encourage submissions that do not necessarily address the conference theme.

Possible theme-related topics

- Development strategies: domestic policies supporting industrialization/structural change; the need for policy space
- Managing financial crises and income policies for employment creation
- Reforms for global economic governance in the context of development: e.g. multilateral, bilateral, regional, plurilateral trade; international monetary and financial system; management of debt crisis
- Implications of mega-regionals for developing countries.
- The role of political institutions for development
- The role of economic institutions such as WTO, IMF, World Bank, the G-8/G-20; international standards organizations, for development
- The WTO's new trade facilitation agreement and development
- Role of public/private partnerships in development
- Climate change and its impact on economic development
- Food security and climate change; sustainable agriculture
- Sustainable development issues such as natural resource extraction and energy
- The interaction of domestic law and politics to development
- The role of hard and soft law in international economic and sustainable development reforms
- Role of technology in transformation of agriculture
- Access to technology for sustainable development
- Micro-finance and development
- Renewable energy and trade and investment
- The labor and development nexus in a global supply chain
- Evaluating trade and development policies: e.g. NAFTA at 20; EU at 20; the WTO at 20; UNCTAD at 50
- Methodological approaches international economic law and development;
- Interpretive approaches to international economic law and development: theory vs. practice;
- The rise of BRICs and implications for development
- The rise of Africa and international economic law
- The proliferation of trade and investment agreements and their implications for development

We also welcome submissions on any other IEL related topic.

We are in the process of exploring publication opportunities for the 2014 conference. The results of previous biennial IECLIG conferences have been published as Minnesota Journal of International Law, Symposium: International Economic Law in a Time of Change: Reassessing Legal Theory, Doctrine, Methodology and Policy Prescriptions. Volume XX Summer 2011 Number 2; THE POLITICS OF INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC LAW, Tomer Broude, Amy Porges and Marc L. Busch eds., Cambridge University Press 2010; INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC LAW: THE STATE AND FUTURE OF THE DISCIPLINE, Colin B. Picker, Isabella D. Bunn and Douglas W. Arner eds., Oxford: Hart Publishing, 2008; and TRADE AS THE GUARANTOR OF PEACE, LIBERTY AND SECURITY? CRITICAL HISTORICAL AND EMPIRICAL PERSPECTIVES, Padideh Ala'i, Tomer Broude, & Colin Picker eds., ASIL Press, 2006.

III. Conference Details

The conference will take place at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law located in Denver, Colorado on November 13-15, 2014. Denver is easily accessible via domestic and international airlines. The University of Denver is located in a beautiful part of the city, and is just a short car-ride from the majestic Rocky Mountains. Hotel and other logistical details will be announced later this summer.

For ASIL Members, the registration fee is expected to be $95 ($135, non-ASIL Members), which will cover some meals and a reception. Students currently enrolled in a program of higher education will receive a 50% discount. A reduced rate or a fee waiver may be considered for participants from developing countries.

Please understand that budget constraints prevent us from providing any travel or other financial assistance to conference participants.

Jason Yackee & Elizabeth Trujillo, ASIL IECLIG Co-Chairs
Sonia Rolland & David Zaring, ASIL IECLIG Co-Vice Chairs