VI. Acknowledgments

The American Society of International Law gratefully acknowledges the manifold contributions of dozens of its member experts to this Benchbook.

Professor Diane Marie Amann, Emily and Ernest Woodruff Chair in International Law at the University of Georgia School of Law, deserves principal credit for this valuable contribution to the adjudication of international legal questions in United States courts. It was Professor Amann who conceived of the project and provided editorial leadership throughout its multiyear development.

Contributors included authors, editors, and peer reviewers, drawn from practice and academia, listed supra § V. We also benefited immensely from the insights and guidance of the Society’s Judicial Advisory Board, chaired by Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg and comprising a judicial representative from each circuit of U.S. Court of Appeals and three state supreme courts. We particularly acknowledge Judge Rosemary Barkett (ret.) who, in November 2010, convened a group of her judicial colleagues from the Southern District of Florida for in-depth discussion of an initial draft.

Providing invaluable editorial and administrative support were Professors David P. Stewart and Beth Van Schaack, along with ASIL Attorney-Editor Kathleen A. Doty. The staff of the Alexander Campbell King Law Library at the University of Georgia School of Law gave extensive research support.

The Benchbook will be subject to ongoing updates by members of an editorial committee, and we look forward to their additional contributions.
