

International Law in the Asia-Pacific during the COVID-19 Pandemic

Thursday, July 16, 2020

TIME: 8:00 – 9:30 PM Eastern Time

Online Webinar

The COVID-19 pandemic has had unprecedented effects on many forms of international law throughout the globe. ASIL's Asia-Pacific Interest group invites you to join in an online webinar discussing the breadth of the pandemic's impact on private and public international law in the region, including trade, investment, cross-border business, health, immigration, security, and dispute resolution, among other transnational concerns. This event, featuring speakers from East Asia, South Asia, Southeast Asia, Central Asia, and the Pacific, reflecting the diversity of the Interest Group's membership, will explore these issues and more affecting the region.

Registration is required to receive the Zoom link.

Speakers:

- Vivienne Bath, University of Sydney
- Manjiao Chi, University of International Business and Economics, Beijing
- Matthew Erie, University of Oxford, Moderator
- Kawun Kakar, Kakar Advocates, Kabul
- Ali Sultan, Research Society of International Law, Islamabad
- Charis Tan, Peter & Kim, Singapore
- Gu Weixia, Hong Kong University Faculty of Law

For more information and registration, go to www.asil.org/events.

This session is organized by ASIL's Asia-Pacific Interest Group