

Asia Pacific Interest Group of the American Society of International Law
Call for Newsletter Editor and *Media and Communications Coordinator

The Asia-Pacific Interest Group (APIG) is seeking a Newsletter Editor to lead the development and publication of our regular newsletter. The Newsletter Editor would lead and possibly expand an existing team, including Newsletter Editor Assistant and regional contributors, to release a newsletter twice per year (December and June), covering topics of interest in international law for APIG members. This role offers a unique opportunity to shape the voice of APIG and highlight key developments in international law, events and research from across the region.

Eligibility & Expectations:

- Must be a current APIG Member or willing to become one.
- Should be a mid-career or well-established scholar or practitioner in international law. We would also consider emerging scholars with a solid track record in research and/or practice, alongside considerable connections to the region or regional issues.
- Responsible for coordinating content, liaising with contributors, and overseeing editorial standards.
- Will work closely with APIG Co-Chairs, Advisory Board Members and the newsletter team.

This is a highly visible role within the APIG community and offers a platform to contribute meaningfully to regional legal discourse.

APIG is also inviting applications for a Media and Communications Coordinator to join our team. This role is ideal for a junior scholar or early-career professional with a passion for international law and digital engagement.

Eligibility & Expectations:

- Must be a current APIG Member or willing to become one.
- Will be responsible for promoting APIG activities, publications, and events across platforms such as LinkedIn and others.
- Familiar with social media platforms and able to synthesize short, concise messages for our online community.
- Will work collaboratively with the APIG Co-Chairs, Advisory Board and the newsletter team, among others to support broader outreach efforts.

This is a great opportunity to gain visibility in the field and contribute to APIG's growing online presence. You would be part of the voice of APIG, interacting online with members of APIG community and many others.

Those interested in either of these positions should send their CV as well as a 1 page (max.) statement of interest to the APIG Co-Chairs, Yueming Yan (yuemingyan@cuhk.edu.hk) and David J Devlaeminck (djdevlaeminck@live.com) by December 1, 2025. Any questions concerning these positions can also be directed to the email address above.
