

Dear Colleagues,

We are pleased to announce that the next International Law in Domestic Courts Workshop will be held at Fordham School of Law on Friday, May 15. Fordham has asked that we get a preliminary headcount of people likely to attend, both for purposes of reserving a block of hotel rooms and for planning dinners. Please give us a sense of your plans by completing this one-question survey: <https://forms.gle/Hha8Eka5gxguZ89EA>. (It would be great if you could do it right now!)

Like last year, instead of full-length papers, we are soliciting earlier stage works-in-progress that are 10-12 pages long. Submissions may be precis for new projects or excerpts from more complete articles. The goal of the workshop is to provide substantive feedback on true works-in-progress in advance of the summer writing season.

If you have a project that you would like to workshop, please send an abstract (or more, if you prefer) to Chimène (cikeitner@ucdavis.edu) and Bill (william.dodge@law.gwu.edu) by Friday, February 27. Following the selection of projects, we will solicit volunteers to serve as commentators. Contributing authors will be expected to submit their 10-12 page works-in-progress by May 1, to be circulated among attendees.

We hope to see as many of you as possible at the workshop this year. We will circulate further details, including hotel information, in the coming weeks.

Sincerely,

Bill Dodge & Chimène Keitner
